

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to an assay for the identification of biologically active compounds, in particular to a reporter gene assay for the identification of compounds, which have an effect on mRNA stability. More particularly, the present invention relates to a reporter gene expression system and cell lines comprising said expression system. The invention further relates to compounds which destabilise mRNA.